"These brought the experience of proximity to the performers to a whole new level, with none of the restrictions that normally apply to conventional performances. This was refreshing in a world generally tied down by rules and regulations... This was created as an interactive multimedia experience, and in this it more than succeeded." - Nick Swyft, Mark Aspen Reviews

I'M NOT SURE ABOUT YOU, BUT I NEED...

Immersive multimedia performance - "dancing as gallery" as a rebellious response to "dancing in gallery". The work interrogates the nature of our digital society as the performer is surrounded by the spectators and their gadgets, at the same time, contemplated on the power tug-of-war of the performance space and the contemporary society.

Presented at Goethe-Institut Hongkong (2020), Kasino am Schwarzenbergplatz at ImPulsTanz - Vienna International Dance Festival (2019), The Place, London (2019)

Commissioned by Hong Kong Art Development Council, Goethe-Institut Hongkong

"This is without a doubt one of the most digitally experimental fringe shows you're likely to see ... There's an undeniably attractive energy, which pulls the audience in from the moment they step foot inside and doesn't let up until the very end." - Mike Wells, The Reviews Hub

Thousand Papers

Durational Performance and Community Installation - we reflect on how freedom of expression is still being oppressed nowadays in many corners of the world. It is a work that we have derived from the concept of community sculpture building, movement practices and East Asian traditions.

痴線一分鐘 Minute Moonshine

Alternate reality game and experimental theatre

At the online game, a red-dressed woman appeared at a wartime ruin in Hong Kong and encountered the main character, Ah Wing, as they spilt stories of a lost plane departing from London. Meanwhile, the game urged the players to get a ticket from Hong Kong, only to get into a plane crash as the red-dressed woman re-appeared in the theatre performance.

We created a distinctive and new theatrical language with a heavy emphasis on the use of ready-made objects, accessorized costumes, fragmented scenes and immersive experience. The nonlinear storytelling befitted the theme by bending the acknowledgement of now and past, deflecting an anxious and exhausted state of (post)-colonial identity-seeking. The work sustained itself as an uncomfortable and unsettling feeling.

Commissioned by and presented at Tai Kwun Hong Kong
as part of 'SPOTLIGHT: A Season of Performing Arts' (2021)
co-funded by Jockey Club Hong Kong and MGCfutures in London

Radio Neighbourhood

Radio drama and outdoor dance performance - a social innovation project transforming British open spaces into grounds for addressing migration and human rights issues through live art. This public performance tells stories about cross-cultural interactions and engage with post-humanist thinking. The transdisciplinary project is a brave experiment on collisions of dance styles and audio drama incorporating storytelling with a taste of ESEA aesthetics.
